

Killer Death Storm 2008 - Pictures

Contributed by Kelly Rush
Sunday, 30 November 2008
Last Updated Sunday, 30 November 2008

Today we received a dumping of snow, probably around 5-6" (which is pretty impressive for still being in the month of November). As people usually do, someone was speeding down our narrow, bumpy, dirt road, and with the addition of ice and snow, this was the result...

{gallery}blog_images/11302008{/gallery}

Everyone appeared to be without injury, and after about 20 minutes, a truck arrived, and was able to pull the driver out of the ditch.

Please, people...it's Michigan. If you aren't going to drive safely all the time, at LEAST slow down when there is a half-a-foot of snow on the ground...